Queen's Sustainability Conference 2017

Welcome to QSUS

The Queen's Sustainability Conference is a student-run organization that aims to truly make a difference on our campus. Entering our second year of influencing policy at Queen's, our team of dedicated environmental executives is excited to explore new and innovative ways to make the Queen's community more sustainable.

This year, delegates will take on the role of environmental consultants, as we shift our focus to the Climate Action Plan put forth by Queen's in January of 2016. Our goal is to expose a diverse group of delegates to the vast opportunities and challenges associated with striving towards sustainability.

At QSUS, those involved will be immersed in a weekend full of case competitions, workshops, speaker panels, and networking events – each geared towards inspiring real, positive change in the environmental practices seen at Queen's. However, none of this can be made possible without the invaluable support of those at the forefront of the environmental movement. As a result, we have prepared a variety of unique options for which you and your firm can become meaningfully involved in our project.

Queen's Sustainability Conference is about inspiring both innovation and collaboration amongst some of our generation's brightest minds, but is also about building the bridge between sponsors and delegates. At QSUS, we are committed to creating valuable partnerships that satisfy both your firm's needs, as well as our overall vision of developing a more sustainable environment for the Queen's community.

Why Sponsor QSUS?

Establish

Build a sustainability-focused image among Queen's students by affiliating your organization with a conference that brings real, positive change to the community.

Inspire

Share your successes, challenges and visions as an established firm. Define leaders of tomorrow by connecting with environmentally focused students and motivating them to enact change on campus.

Network

Establish meaningful relationships with leading experts and recruit from one of the country's top universities. Gain company exposure while meeting students with a passion and drive for making a difference.
